

not going to vote for the advancement of this bill. I am not going to vote for the advancement of 117 until the two sides sit down together again and talk this thing through. Unfortunately we are asked today to make a decision that neither one of the parties could come to and I think there are going to be three big losers in this whole thing, the coops, the banks, and this body. And I have to rise to oppose 343.

SENATOR KILGARIN: Senator DeCamp, did you wish to close on the advancement of LB 343? Excuse me, Senator Remmers just pushed his light. Senator Remmers.

SENATOR REMMERS: Thank you. I would like to address a question to Senator DeCamp.

SENATOR DeCAMP: Yes, sir.

SENATOR REMMERS: Do we have any provision in here or are we going to have to have the state insure for computer error?

SENATOR DeCAMP: There is no specific provision. However, I am informed by committee counsel that there is something called the Uniform Commercial Code Filing Council, what, that is to address those issues. In other words, the bill has a structure set up to do that precise thing you are talking about, a council that would address those. If you would like to be more specific in the bill, I would sure be happy to do it.

SENATOR REMMERS: I would be more comfortable with it.

SENATOR DeCAMP: I would, too, quite frankly.

SENATOR KILGARIN: Senator Lamb, your light is on.

SENATOR LAMB: Well, just to comment if I could, Madam Chairperson. I guess I don't see the solution being in not advancing the bill. Maybe I am missing something here but I supported the Remmers amendment and that lost. However, the bill that we have now certainly is an improvement as far as the coops are concerned over the present situation. Now if you want to leave the stalemate as it is for a longer period of time and not advance the bill, maybe that would have an effect on the people to get together but I don't see it that way at this point. They have already had this stalemate for weeks and weeks and weeks and they have come this far. I am not sure that there is going to be any progress at all unless we do advance the bill, and certainly I can't see the coops not
